The 'Last Days' Prophecies Are Coming True — And The Great Tribunal Has Begun!

JUDGEMENT DAY IS DRAWING NEAR!

The Rev. Billy Graham's END TIMES MESSAGE

IF YOU BELIEVE IN GOD, THE STORY INSIDE IS A MUST READ!

BUSTY BEAUTY BEATS TRAFFIC TICKETS — BY TELLING JUDGE SHE'S A DUMB BLONDE!

DUMB LIKE A FOX? European motorist Nina Jungsen has gotten out of paying traffic fines 37 times by using the "dumb blonde" defense in court.

By MIKE FOSTER / Weekly World News

MIAMI, Fla. — Nina Jungsen has been ticketed for traffic violations a whopping 37 times, but she's always beaten the rap in court, by offering the same basic excuse: She's blonde — so she's too DUMB to understand traffic laws!

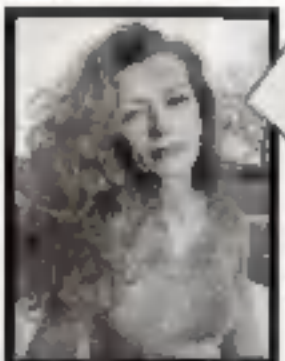
Most recently, the honey-haired 32-year-old sales clerk was cited for running a red light in order to make a U-turn in an intersection, nearly causing a three-car pile-up.

"I had told the judge that it's awfully hard for girls like me to remember all those complicated rules and regulations — that stuff like eight-ball-way and when to signal," says bubbly Nina.

"I explained how I thought that a red light meant you weren't supposed to go straight ahead. I didn't know there was anything wrong with turning around.

"He spent about five minutes trying to help me figure it out and when he saw I was honestly having difficulty getting the idea, he was very understanding and let me off with a warning."

The "dumb blonde" excuse is so successful that Nina can usually avoid getting a ticket to begin with. For every ticket she's received, there are at least 10 she's talked her way out of by convincing highway patrolmen she just can't comprehend traffic laws. "They're usually very nice about it," she says. "Especially when it comes to things like explaining how many people have to be in the car for you to drive in the car pool lane, which a lot of my blonde friends also do."



HONEY-HAIRED: Nina Jungsen

But on rare occasions, Nina's Bambi-like stare of confusion and tear of her yellow mane doesn't quite do the trick — for example, when she's pulled over by what she refers to as "dark-haired, jealous-type" lady cops. That's when she ends up in traffic court doing her spiel.

Generally, Nina tells the judge that "as a regular blonde," it's difficult for her to grasp rules of the road others might find elementary. Or she cites her dazzling head of flaxen hair as the root of the problems that frequently accompany her when she hits the road in her red convertible.

"Sometimes I tell the judge how when I'm driving with the top down all these guys wave and stare at me from their cars. It's very distracting," she says. "Or I tell them I'm so busy looking at myself in the rear-view mirror that I don't pay attention to what's going on around me.

"Whatever I say, it seems to work. I've been doing it for so long that I've got it down to a science. I've never had to pay a fine, and I've never had my license suspended. I've been very lucky."

Nina's courtroom antics have been fodder for local TV news — but they're not a hit among feminists in the crusaders working to improve the image of women. "This young woman is cynically appealing to those who would stereotype fair-haired women," said a spokesperson for the local chapter of Blonde And Proud.

"She's setting back the cause of equal respect for blondes."

Distraught mom kills comatose 6-year-old!

JAEN, Spain — After watching her 6-year-old son Jaime lie in a coma like a vegetable for nine heartbreaking months, distraught mom Maria Mayoral, 33, walked into the boy's hospital room one morning — and stabbed him to death with a letter opener!

"The doctors couldn't offer me any hope that he'd ever get better and I just couldn't stand to see him like that any more," she told police.

Pregnant gal picks prized pooches over unborn child!

'WE'RE GIVING AWAY OUR BABY — SO WE WON'T MAKE OUR POODLES JEALOUS!'

POOCH LOVERS Paula and Ray O'Mara don't want to upset their prized poodles, Pebbles and Pluto.

HOUSTON, Texas — Pregnant Paula O'Mara and her hubby Ray will give their baby away when it is born next month — because they're afraid it will make their two pampered poodles jealous.

"We already have two lovable little babies — Pebbles and Pluto.

"There is no room in our house for a squalling kid who poops in the pants and bawls all night," said Paula, a 28-year-old housewife and sculptor.

"Our sweet little darlings throw tantrums and won't eat if they see Ray and me kiss or hug. Think what they'd do if they saw me cuddle a baby. I wouldn't put my dogs through that, no way," she added.

Her car salesman husband agrees that having a child wouldn't be fair to their pooches.

"Paula's pregnancy was a terrible accident that happened because we didn't use preservatives just one night, but we're not going to make another mistake and keep the baby. Our main kid Pebbles and Pluto," he remarked. "We don't believe in abortion," Paula explained.

"I come from a well-to-do family. Ray and I have a comfortable lifestyle that was richly enhanced three years ago when we brought Pebbles and Pluto.

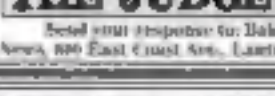
"The little angels go everywhere with us . . . on vacations, to the park. They cuddle up beside us when we're at home and sleep with us at night.

"They're our life and vice versa. We couldn't put them through the trauma of having to share our love with a child. They're high-strung and extremely jealous."

Paula said she doesn't know whether she's carrying a boy or girl. "Our precious poodles don't demand anything from us except love. They're well behaved, easy to keep clean and housebroken.

"Babies are a problem from the word go.

"And the worst part is they keep causing bigger problems — emotionally and financially — as they grow up."



YOU BE THE JUDGE

☐ The O'Maras are loyal and loving pet owners who have every right in the world to give up their baby to protect precious little Pebbles and Pluto.

☐ The O'Maras should be forced into a volcano for choosing two smelly dogs over their own flesh and blood.

WOMAN ACCUSES HUSBAND OF EXPOSING HIMSELF — TO HER!

DEVOUT CATHOLIC

By VINCENZO SARCH
Weekly World News

Bizarre legal battle is hot topic among lawyers

ROME—In one of the most bizarre legal dramas ever, a woman has brought criminal charges against a man for exposing himself to her — even though they're husband and wife!

In a complaint filed with police, Antonia Genovese accused her husband Dario of "humiliating, degrading and embarrassing" her repeatedly with the shocking behavior over a two-year period.

"He would make me look at him like that — I would get physically sick," the 34-year-old woman told a Rome newspaper.

Although the case has been treated as a joke by the Italian press, feminists are rallying to Mrs. Genovese's side, pointing out that until recently, the idea of marital rape was also laughed at.

"The mere fact that this man happens to be married to the complaining witness should in no way give him license to engage in such abusive, outrageous and demeaning conduct," declared women's rights activist and attorney Claudia Mazelli.

Mrs. Genovese claims that the incidents began shortly after the couple married in 1997.

"One night Dario came out of the bathroom completely naked and in a state of arousal," charges the woman, who teaches kindergarten and describes herself as a devout Catholic.

"I was disgusted and I told him so."

But night after night, the same thing was reported.

"I begged him to stop, telling him how much his behavior bothered me, but he refused," she said. "He would say because I was his wife I should not be ashamed."

Finally, after consulting with friends, the woman decided to fight back. Early on the morning of April 13, she contacted police and reported her husband. Cops arrested the stunned man at his business and he was taken to jail.

Dario, 35, was booked on exhibitionism charges and spent a night behind bars before being freed on bond, but prosecutors are leery about pursuing the case.

"Although everyone agrees that the suspect's behavior was deplorable, officials are worrying about setting a precedent," a criminal-justice source said.

Annoyed diner shoots man for chewing with his mouth open!

CARACAS, Venezuela — Irate diner Ernesto Alfaro, 43, was charged with murder after he took out a pistol in a crowded restaurant and gunned down a man at a nearby table — because the victim was chewing with his mouth open!

"I ordered an expensive meal and I was looking forward to enjoying it," Alfaro told police. "But I couldn't because the man at the next table was chewing with his mouth open. It was disgusting."

Alfaro, a married father of two, said he asked the man to close his mouth while eating, but the request was ignored.

"I asked him politely, but he just kept on chewing with his mouth open," Alfaro said. "I warned him that I would shoot him if he didn't stop, but he just kept on chewing with his mouth open."

Alfaro then pulled out a gun and shot the man in the head, killing him instantly.

Witnesses said the victim, identified only as Jose Perez, was a skilled mechanic reportedly told police.

Investigators said accountant Julio Perezo, 51, was having lunch with two business associates when

COLOR CHANGES ON YOUR BODY CAN BE HEALTH WARNINGS

By JUNE SAWYER
Weekly World News

Even minor changes in the color of your skin, eyes, mouth, or other parts of the body can be early tip-offs to health problems, doctors say.

. . . say doctors!

"Any of these changes may be a danger sign and warrant seeing your doctor immediately," said Dr. Isadore Rosenfeld, author of The Complete Medical Exam.

Here's a list of body changes and what they could mean, according to Dr. Rosenfeld and Dr. Gerald Sokol:

SKIN

Paler than usual complexion, including lips, tongue and hands: This could mean anemia, a shortage of red blood cells or hemoglobin, the substance that carries oxygen in the blood.

Unusually red complexion: This may indicate liver disease or high blood pressure. It also might mean a serious disorder in which too many red blood cells cause the blood to thicken.

New brown patches: These may indicate skin cancer — a disease that's usually curable in the early stages.

Yellowish bumps: Found around the palms, elbows or eyes, these bumps usually indicate high blood cholesterol levels.

NOSE

Red and inflamed membranes inside the nose, but no watery eyes: This is a sign of an allergy or irritation. It could also mean there's a polyp, or small lump, inside the nose.

MOUTH

Dark-colored tongue: A mineral problem can force a person to breathe through his mouth more than normal, causing the mucus inside the mouth to become darker.

Blue lips: Advanced heart trouble or anemia could possibly be preventing enough oxygen from getting into the blood.

Red sores at the corners of the mouth: This may indicate a deficiency in vitamin B2.

Dark blue lines on the gums: Lead poisoning could be the cause. Be especially alert for this sign in younger children, who sometimes chew lead-based paints off walls and furniture.

HANDS

Red splotchy palms: Severe malnutrition or liver disease may be the cause, so see your doctor right away.

Yellow-brown or greenish color under fingernails with separation of the nails: A yeast infection is probably responsible for the yellow-brown hue, while bacterial infections result in the green ones.

Dark gray or black spots under the nails: Such a spot could be as harmless as a mole or sun damage — but it could also indicate a serious cancer.

EYES

Yellowing of the eye, along with areas of skin: Chances are that jaundice, resulting from a liver malfunction, is present. Consult a physician.

White ring in the corners. This is common in older people, but for people under 40 it could mean a vulnerability to atherosclerosis, narrowing of the blood vessels.

Getting married? Here are 8 ways to tell if you're making a BIG mistake!

By MICHAEL K. TODD / Weekly World News

If you're about to take the marriage plunge, eight danger signals will warn you of rocky times ahead, says an expert.

"There are eight good tip-offs to a bad marriage," said family therapist Dr. Alan Entin.

Check the following points. Just one of the problems listed below — failure to communicate — can devastate a marriage all by itself. Here are the signals:

FREQUENT ARGUMENTS

Said Dr. Entin: "A true marriage is when you may at each other over who should take out the trash isn't really an argument. But daily battles over simple things like the evening's entertainment indicate a basic difference that can't be reconciled.

NAGGING HABITS

Can you live with your partner's annoying habits? Your first reaction might be, "Well, his persistent nail-biting really isn't so bad." But if you're moved to criticize your mate for what you perceive as bothersome habits, it is bound to affect your marriage over time.

DIFFERENT EXPECTATIONS

Do you and your partner have the same expectations of marriage? If one partner thinks certain responsibilities are for the husband and others are for the wife and the other thinks all the responsibilities should be shared, it won't be a good partnership.

JEALOUSY

"Sometimes people invite jealousy," said Dr. Entin. "For instance, a handsome stranger makes advances to Mary at a party. Joe becomes enraged. Mary thinks 'Wow, he really cares about me.' So she responds to men's attentions and Joe treats her less and less. Jealousy has a tremendously corrosive effect."

POSSESSIVENESS

"Joe likes to play basketball one night a week with the boys. Mary complains because she's left with nothing to do. Yet one of the things that attracted Mary to Joe was his athletic masculinity. Trying to control him leads to problems."

FAILURE TO COMMUNICATE

"If your partner withdraws into a shell when problems arise, then you will never work your problems out. If you don't have strong lines of communication, your marriage is doomed."

DIFFERENT VALUES

"There are two basic areas in question — fidelity and financial stability. If fidelity is not as important to your mate and very important to you, you won't be satisfied for long. As for financial stability, some people need to know there's always money for a rainy day. If the other partner loves to spend every cent, it's a no-win situation."

FREQUENT LYING

"No good marriage is based on deception," said Dr. Entin. "Once you know you are dealing with a liar, suspicion and mistrust will dominate your marriage."

FOLKS WHO TAKE RISKS ARE HEALTHIER AND HAPPIER THAN SCAREDY-CATS . . . SAYS NEW STUDY!

By JOE KANE / Weekly World News

People who take risks are healthier and get more out of life than those who don't, say experts.

"A few well-chosen risks are part of a long and healthy life," declares Dr. Daniel Gastel, past president of the American Society of Psychoanalytic Physicians.

Dr. Salvatore Maddi, a professor of behavioral sciences, said that some people have a personality trait called "hardiness" that helps them stay healthy under great stress.

An important aspect of hardiness, Dr. Maddi found, is a willingness to take risks. Hardy people are also less likely to suffer symptoms of illnesses such as cancer, heart disease, hypertension and colitis. What's more, the benefits of risk-taking apply to men and women of all ages, according to Dr. Gastel. He suggested a four-step approach toward risk taking:

1. Imagine as much as you can about the risk you are taking.

Try to recall similar situations from the past. For example, if you are trying to learn to ski, you might want to look back upon successful experiences you have had in other sports.

2. Don't worry about feeling should feel "turned on" by the risk you are considering. For example, suppose you want to get to know someone who attracts you — but the risk is you may be rejected.

To time this properly, you should wait until you are feeling really excited and you are at your most confident level. "You wouldn't want to take this chance if you were feeling depressed, because those feelings might be picked up by the other person and spoil the opportunity for you to know him or her better," Dr. Gastel said.

4. Evaluate each risk you take, and how you behaved when you

THE SIZE OF YOUR HOME CAN CAUSE STRESS

If your home is too big, too small or painted the wrong color, it can cause unnecessary stress than could drive family members crazy.

By MICHAEL TODD
Weekly World News

Top sociologist Dr. Jackie Boles says the type of home a family lives in and the way it's decorated is directly related to the amount of stress in the family.

"I've often found that marital difficulties and family dissension stem from a stressful home environment," said Dr. Boles.

"A home can seem completely adequate for a family but still have an adverse effect on their daily lives."

Here are some common home situations that are likely to cause unnecessary stress.

• Living in a home that's too large or too small.

A young couple may buy a big house because they are planning a family. Then they discover the expense and effort of the large house is more than they expected. This can lead to tons of stress.

Or an older couple might find that once all their children have left their family-sized house there's suddenly a lonely, empty feeling. Often a house [illegible] small causes a lack of privacy that can create serious anguish and despair.

• Living in a home that is too "different." If your house stands out too much in the neighborhood — because it's too modern, too old, too fancy or too big — you might find that being a misfit creates stress.

Keep that in mind when buying a new house. Try not to be too far out of step with the rest of the neighborhood.

• Picking the wrong room colors.

Painting a small room a dark color will make it seem smaller and more confined, which can cause stress. Painting a large room a pale color can make it seem large — leading to feelings of loneliness and isolation.

. . . WARN EXPERTS!

• Exposure to too much noise. Do you have doors that squeak and slam, appliances that hum, floors that echo every sound? Little by little, this constant barrage of unnecessary noise can make a person go nuts.

Man acquitted of murder jailed for burping in court!

HAMBURG, Germany — A jury acquitted Karl Schutte in the brutal murder of his girlfriend, but a judge sentenced him to 30 days in jail anyway — for letting out a gigantic burp in the courtroom!

Police had charged Schutte, 29, with slitting Ida Gessner's throat during a fight, but Schutte claimed she was killed by an intruder and the jury found him not guilty. Judge Helmut Reinhart was about to order the defendant released when Schutte belched so loudly the judge almost fell off the bench. Reinhart found the defendant guilty of contempt and had him hauled off to the pen.

Words of hope at the close

Dr. Billy Graham's END TIMES MESSAGE of the 20th Century!

"The best is yet to be!" That is Billy Graham's upbeat prophecy about the fate that awaits mankind after the year 2000 — the start of the new millennium.

The legendary evangelist has touched the hearts of millions around the world with his famous crusades. Now, for the first time, Dr. Graham — who has been a friend and confidant to every U.S. president since Eisenhower — is telling his life story in an inspiring autobiography, Just As I Am. In the book, the revered 80-year-old preacher also delivers a heartwarming message of hope for the millennium.

He indicates that Doomsday won't necessarily arrive in the year 2000 as other Bible experts have predicted, and there could be plenty of time before Jesus returns to Earth to judge mankind.

"What new opportunities await us in the new millennium, if God grants us more time before Christ comes again?" he asks.

The answer, he says, is a chance to save the souls of every living American.

As the millennium approaches, Dr. Graham predicts, there will surely be a backlash against sinful behavior, giving religion a new chance to blossom.

"The growing secularism and moral chaos of our age may actually make many people more open to the gospel.

"It will be an exciting time to be alive!"

The religious leader does admit, however, that things will probably get worse before they get better. As the year 2000 approaches, he warns, our nation's moral decay will worsen.

"American Christians will face new challenges. Rampant, aggressive secularism may force Christians into the defensive or even reduce them to a despised minority. It has happened before. And the loss of our children to drugs or sensualism or the moral relativism propagated by mass entertainment does not bode well for our future."

Worse still, evil ideologies even more dangerous than Communism could sweep the world in the next few months, Dr. Graham suggests. "What new tyrannies will attempt to capture our world and what new ideologies will deceive humans to take the wrong path in life? Only God knows." Also, thanks to advances in global communications such as the Internet, foreign cultures will increasingly exert an influence on our society — and conversely for the better, he notes.

"Developments in technology mean that the various societies now influence each other in ways we never could have envisioned a few generations ago.

"The world is changing, and with it the methods of evangelism will change also. But the message will not change, for it is timeless, meant for every generation."

That message, says the famed preacher, is that God loves us all.

"Our lives are never fulfilled and complete until His purpose becomes the foundation and center of our lives.

"He wants to fill our lives with meaning and purpose right now. Then He wants us to spend all eternity with Him in Heaven, free forever from the pain and sorrow and death of this world.

"Like any other gift, God's gift of salvation does not become ours until we accept it and make it our own. God has done everything possible to provide salvation. But we must reach out in faith and accept it."

The approaching millennium will bring with it many unsettling changes, he says.

"One thing will not change: God's love for humanity and His desire to see men and women yield their lives to Him and come to know Him in a personal way.

"No, I don't know the future, but I do know this: The best is yet to be. Heaven awaits us and that will be far, far more glorious than anything we

NEW STUDY PROVES... VITAMIN C FIGHTS CANCER

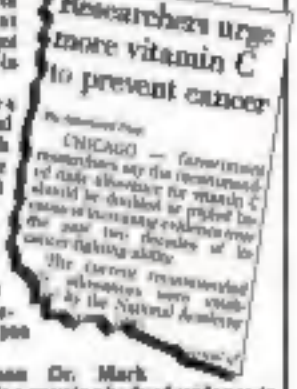
CHICAGO — Want to fight cancer? Guzzle orange and grapefruit juice and eat green vegetables — lots of them!

A just-released study published in the Journal of the American Medical Association has found that vitamin C is a powerful cancer fighter.

And citrus juices and vegetables are loaded with the stuff.

But now, experts are saying most Americans don't get enough vitamin C in their diets.

Researchers from the National Institutes of Health (NIH) believe the recommended daily allowance for vitamin C is far too low. They want to see it raised from 60 milligrams to between 100 and 200 milligrams.



Researchers urge more vitamin C to prevent cancer

CHICAGO — Government researchers say the recommended daily allowance for vitamin C should be doubled or tripled because increasing evidence from the past two decades of research finds the vitamin's cancer-fighting ability.

The current recommended allowances were established by the National Academy

NIH spokesman Dr. Mark Levine says there's a growing body of evidence to support the idea that five servings of fruit and vegetables a day can help protect the body from cancer.

Foods rich in vitamin C are citrus juices, tomatoes, berries, cabbage, green beans, broccoli, spinach and potatoes.

But Dr. Levine and his colleagues warn that it's possible to take in too much vitamin C. The body can only absorb about 200 milligrams at a time. After that, we start expelling it and it's wasted.

The NIH study was 20 years in the making.

CARDIFF GIANT WAS NOT A HUMAN, NEW DNA TEST SHOWS

By MIKE FOSTER
Weekly World News

SOPHISTICATED TESTS conclude the petrified body was once flesh and blood. Surprisingly, the blood is the same type recovered previously from the Holy Shroud of Turin, believed to be the burial cloth of Jesus Christ.

10-foot-tall man remains a scientific & biblical enigma

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. — The famous Cardiff Giant — the petrified 10-foot-tall man found buried in upstate New York in 1868 — was definitely not human, surprising new DNA tests show!

The study conducted by government scientists, adds a new layer of mystery to the controversial scientific enigma, which has been regarded over the years variously as "the discovery of the century," "a freak of nature," "an outrageous hoax" and a "statue of great antiquity."

"Remarkably, these tests add support to the original belief that the Cardiff Giant was one of those 'giants' who lived in prehistoric times and are alluded to in the Bible," states Professor Adam Timberwyn of New York City who participated in a peer review of the study.

"Referring to the days of Noah, Genesis 6:4 states 'There were giants in the Earth in those days.' And we now have extraordinary evidence that these large humanoids were not Homo sapiens."

The origin of the Cardiff Giant has been shrouded in mystery ever since the massive, stun-ner figure was unearthed on October 16, 1868. The amazing discovery was made on a farm near Cardiff as businessman George Hull and his brother-in-law William Newell were digging a well.

Soon the giant was being exhibited in the pit where it was found, drawing up to ten dollars a day from all over the country. The fossil — believed by some to be a biblical giant and by others to be the petrified remains of a human freak — was later sold to a businessman who took it on the road.

Several noted experts of the time examined the Cardiff Giant. One, Dr. John F. Bernier, pointed out there was no evidence that mortal flesh could ever turn to stone. So he concluded that the giant must be an incredibly detailed statue that had been carved centuries earlier by missionaries.

Dr. Otniel C. Marsh, an Ivy League scientist examined the remains and haughtily declared that it was a complete fake, a crude carving made in modern times.

In the following decades, the giant toured in carnivals around the country. In 1948, the body was donated to the Farmers Museum in Cooperstown, where it remains on display.

The true nature of the Cardiff Giant remained a mystery until recently, when government scientists performed their tests. Examination of the remains revealed cells that were so well preserved that they could be identified as human. Of the many ancient tests available today, determined without question that it was once living tissue," revealed Dr. Timberwyn.

"What was more surprising, the blood is the same rare type recovered previously from only one other source — the Holy Shroud of Turin, believed to be the burial cloth of Jesus Christ.

"This suggests that the Cardiff Giant may have been related to a race of giants referred to in Chapter 6 of Genesis, who were the offspring of fallen angels or sons of God, as the Bible puts it.

"Indeed, subsequent DNA tests confirmed that the tissue sample included genetic material that was not consistent with that of a human being."

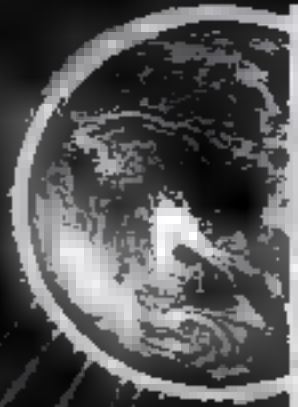
Scientists find evidence of another complete solar system



IS MYSTERIOUS NEW SOLAR SYSTEM HEAVEN?

'Mirror planets' ar resting places fo the souls o dead humans some experts believ

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.— Stunned astronomers have discovered a complete solar system just like our own 44 light-years from Earth — and some experts believe the mystery "mirror" system may be the place where human souls go after death!

"It may sound beyond belief, but it is very possible that we have at last found the place that is traditionally perceived to be Heaven," declared one scientist.

Astronomers at San Francisco State University found the mystery planets circling the star Upsilon Andromedae, using a method that locates planets by measuring their gravitational pull. Earth's most powerful telescopes are able to multiply by thousands times the size of a distant light to enable astronomers to calculate the size of the planets.

To the scientists' amazement, planets in the spotlighted star system were found to be in exactly the opposite position to those in our own.

Astronomers from the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics in Cambridge, Mass., and at the High Altitude Observatory in Boulder, Colo., independently confirmed the existence of the outer solar system.

A member of the discovery team admitted that he was "mystified" by the find but other experts go much further than that.

"Ever since it has been reported that the star system appears to be the mirror image of our own, it called a NASA astrophysicist who asked not to be identified.

More impressively the third planet from the star appears to be a kind of counterpart of Earth, the Bible stand-in-for-our-sun.

For centuries many theologians and scientists have speculated that Heaven might be a kind of perfect version of our world, and we may now have proof that this is in fact true."

Religious leaders worldwide greeted the astonishing discovery with interest.

"It is no secret to the Catholic Church that we now know the physical location of God's home, but it is certainly consistent with scripture to learn that Heaven is a very real place," said Bishop Antonio Ferreira Marques of Portugal.

"If the third planet of the Upsilon star system is indeed where ordinary humans go after death, those of us who believe [illegible] to the Lord can 5 secret ways to get your employees or kids to listen to you!

Bosses and parents can learn a few key phrases that will help them gain respect from the people they direct.

"People will listen to you, understand what you have to say and pay attention to it — if you say it right," said Dr. Gregory Brock, a marriage and family therapy expert.

"Smart, sensitive people know what to say when they're directing grownups and adults."

Here are five key phrases that can help you when you're directing people:

1. "Before I make a decision, I'd like to hear your opinion." Involving listeners will motivate them to follow through and make them feel like they have something to offer," said Dr. Jeanette Cantu, an expert in family studies.

2. "Before I set a deadline, let's talk about your work load at home."

This shows the director's "respect, concern and appreciation" for the listener's life said Dr. Brock.

3. "Here are my reasons for not letting you do this — even though everyone else is."

It is important for parents to treat people — even children — with respect by explaining why a certain decision was reached.

4. "I'd like to figure out the best way to get this done — let me know what you think."

The underlying message is, "I have confidence in your abilities," Dr. Cantu said.

5. "We have a problem and we're going to figure out a solution." This puts both people on equal footing.

Here are five phrases bosses should avoid:

1. "Because I say so and it's my decision."

2. "Don't ask, just do it."

3. "I know what's best for you."

4. "You're a stupid idiot" or "You're an inconsiderate moron."

5. "That's just the way things are done."

These statements tend to make workers resentful and unresponsive.

THE WAY PEOPLE TOUCH YOU REVEALS THEIR PERSONALITY!

The way people touch you reveals a lot about their personality, says an expert. And even if they don't touch you it means something, says Dr. Val Wilson.

Here's how she characterizes various touchers.

• THE GENTLE TAPPER — "He or she can't resist tapping your hand or arm. A gentle tapper is a sensitive friend who is trying to reach out but doesn't want to intrude. This person is often kind but may be too timid."

• THE HEAVY HUGGER — "This is the 'teddy bear' type who rubs your arms, shoulders or back freely and warmly. He's generous, warm, outgoing, forthright and honest."

• THE BACK SLAPPER — "This person is attempting to exhibit friendliness, but often a pat on everyone has degrees, the salesperson the insurance — he pictures himself slapping you on the back and talking — like you," Dr. Wilson told the NEWS.

• THE HAND HOLDER — "He's telling you that he can be trusted. Most gay can share your secrets with him."

• THE SUPPORTING TOUCHER — "He can't pass me by without touching the top of your head, to give you your shoulder a gentle pat."

• THE HUGGER — "He or she is a cuddler, a caresser, affectionate and outgoing person. Huggers enjoy being hugged — and like to give you."

• NON-TOUCHERS — "Many people don't like to touch others, but it's not because they are unfeeling.

Heartbroken widower sleeps beside wife's grave for 33 years!

BUNDLED UP: David DeLeer — shut up wrapped in a sleeping bag and several jackets after spending a chilly night at his wife's grave.

By JOE BERGER

NEW YORK CITY — Heartsick widower David DeLeer is so devoted to his late wife Lila that he's slept beside her grave, come rain or come shine — every night for the last 33 years!

"The thing is amazing. In all these years he's never missed a night ... and I mean not one," said astonished cemetery caretaker Calvin Vengrasse, 62.

"I've seen him out there when the snow was two feet deep and the windchill was five degrees below zero, and he'll be all bundled up in his sleeping bag with all those coats and scarves and stuff on. I'll go out and try to get him to come into the office, but where it's nice and dry and toasty ... but he always says no. He's a regular fixture out there with her.

"Some people think he's nuts, but he's a dear, sweet old man who misses his wife."

'Some people think he's nuts . . . but he's a dear, sweet old man who misses his wife'

- Calvin Vengrasse, cemetery caretaker

FAITHFUL FOREVER: David DeLeer, 77, holds a 33-year-old photo of his beloved wife Lila, who died of pneumonia cancer at the age of 39

Faithful DeLeer's heartbreak began March 24, 1968, when Lila passed away at the age of 39.

"She'd been married to it 11 years and it was the happiest day on Earth ... and then, out of the blue, she was gone and I just ... I just ... I was all alone. ... I'd had a lot of the girls that I'd grown up with ... and I'd been going ... and reading to her ... so I'd kept up a routine ... and I used to do it when she was alive.

"Sometimes I'd read to her and sometimes I'd just sit with her. I'd say, 'I love you, honey, I'll be out there the next night and the night after that and pretty soon I'd get to her [grave] around 11 or 12 o'clock. Talking to her, telling her jokes and stories about how the grandchildren were doing and everything.

"The night when I could no longer feel her [grave] or camera angle and me ... I vowed to her that I would never ever make her spend the night alone, no matter how old or sick or ugly I'd get out there."

And the heartbroken widower has kept his vow, fighting off high, bitter winds and subzero cold temperatures to spend as much precious time as possible — 12,053 straight nights so far — at his late mate's grave.

"My son and my grandkids tell me I should find me another woman and stop spending so much time out at the cemetery," said the energetic grandpa. "They're afraid I'll catch my death of pneumonia some night when it gets real chilly.

"But I know that's the one place on this planet that I'll never feel cold — because out there I've got my Lila to keep me warm."

Cranky old folks live longer, say docs!

Mean and nasty old grouches live longer than folks who are friendly, open and cooperative, says a leading psychologist.

EVEN SUPER-STUPID about E. Hemmings would love up his brain power

You can learn to think fast on your feet by following 10 simple tips to sharpen your wits and keep your mind from getting rusty, experts say.

1 Watch TV quiz shows and play along. Shows like Jeopardy stimulate the brain. Keep your score and try to show steady improvement.

5 Exercise. Quickening the pulse quickens the mind.

6 Do some simple math exercises. Do all the figuring in your head or by computer instead of using a calculator. Balance your checkbook this way.

7 Eat light meals. "When you eat too much, most of the blood from your brain goes to the stomach for digestion and doesn't leave enough to stimulate the thought process," said Dr. Lee Wollman, a former staff physician at New York City's Metropolitan Hospital Center.

8 Think of exciting experiences from your past. These will help you get your mind in gear.

JEALOUS HUBBY SNAGS WIFE'S LOVER IN A BEAR TRAP

JEALOUS husband Aaron Bradison forces his wife Maureen to watch her lover scream in agony as a bear trap tears into his leg.

BOZEMAN, Mont. — Jealous husband Aaron Bradison caught his wife's lover in a bear trap — then [redacted] and humiliated the pain-wracked man for more than two hours before paramedics were called!

The unidentified victim of Bradison's wrath is facing amputation of his right leg as a result of his injury.

Bradison would not comment on the incident but friends say the hunting and fishing enthusiast long suspected his wife Maureen, 30, was having an affair and vowed to "catch the guy in the act."

Cops say Bradison, 37, learned that Maureen was three steel-jawed bear traps outside the bedroom window, trusting that the man would step into one of them.

There he let himself in through the front door of the one-story home, grabbed a pair of clothes and jumped out the window—right into one of the traps.

"That would have been enough revenge for another man," said a police spokesman. "But not Bradison. He grabbed his wife by the hair and dragged her outside to watch as her lover writhed and screamed in pain. The sadistic husband then proceeded to dance and laugh at the guy, calling him 'gimpy' and 'peg leg,' knowing the chances were good that he would lose the leg.

"After more than two hours, Bradison released his wife and allowed her to call an ambulance."

Authorities say bear traps, ill legal in many states, clamp shut with enough power to snap a man's leg in two. Although Bradison is facing a civil suit that could bankrupt him, he has not, to date, been charged with any crime. His wife won't file abuse charges against him for grabbing her hair.

"He told me he doesn't care how much he'll have to pay in damages," said his lawyer. "He says just seeing the guy suffer like that was worth every penny."

Pets can destroy your family life — & even your marriage!

Your pet could be ruining your family life — or even your marriage, experts warn.

But you can keep that from happening by following a few suggestions, they add.

"Animals can be a source of rivalry between husband and wife, between children and between parents and children," declared psychiatrist Dr. Aaron Katcher.

And another psychiatrist, Dr. Samuel Corson, added: "Pets are a two-edged sword. When properly used, they can be a very strong cementing factor in a marriage but they could also be a contributing factor to divorce."

Rivals within a family often keep score of the amount of affection a pet gives other family members, Dr. Katcher explained.

"Pets can create a curtain jealousy," he said. "Children, for example, may feel that their parents are more affectionate toward the pet. And a wife or husband may feel their partner is more interested in the pet than in them."

Added mental health expert Dr. Anthony Pietropinto: "Pet owners should be aware that pets can unfortunately stimulate this using them in unhealthy ways in the marriage. For example, when childless couples get a pet as a substitute for a child, each spouse tries to get the pet on their side when there's a fight."

Here are some suggestions from the experts on how to avoid the problems of pet ownership:

- First decide which type of pet is best for you. Consider the size of your home, your neighbors and whether you've had a pet before. Then set up certain areas of the home where the pet will be allowed.
- Avoid using your pet as a substitute for human relationships.
- Find a good obedience program for your pet.
- Analyze your relationship with your pet. Seriously consider any complaints about the animal. Remember, giving up your pet is always an option.

Had a tough day? THEN DON'T WATCH TV NEWS!

Had a tough day? Well, don't expect to be cheered by watching the evening news on TV — because practically all it is bad news.

That's the finding of five communications experts who spent a week monitoring the news on all three major networks.

An astonishing 84 percent of people's TV news is about murders, disasters, confrontations and other depressing events, they found. "The evening news is glum. It makes you feel that life is pretty bad," observed the Kansas Press.

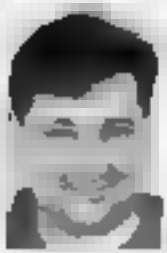
I married the boss's daughter — but I'm loving his wife!



PETER in Demopolis, Ala.

Dear Dotti: I've worked at a factory here in town for the past five years and finally decided that the only way to get ahead was to marry the boss's daughter. She's ugly as sin and dumb as a post. But hey — a guy's got to do what a guy's got to do. And the fact is, I got a raise and promotion two weeks after we tied the knot. The only problem is that I'm really in love with the boss's wife. To be truthful, we've been having an affair for the past 18 months and I can hardly stand to be away from her, even for a minute. My friends keep saying I'm headed for trouble, but I think I can live a double life and get away with it. What about you? PS. PLEASE don't use my picture or say I'm from Demopolis, Ala., or everybody will know it's me. Call me Jack from California. — Peter in Demopolis

Dear Peter: Normally, I'd say you could get away with your little deception but Demopolis is a small town. And something tells me that if you don't snap up every last copy of Weekly World News this letter appears in, you're in a jam!

Neighbor's stupid kids pee on my flowers!

PEGGY in Florida

Dear Dotti: My troubles began when a woman and three grubby kids moved into the house next to mine. Being the kind person I am, I extended the hand of friendship. But I quickly learned the truth — these people are trash. Even worse, the kids, who are 7, 8, and 10, are like wild beasts. They don't even know how to use the bathroom in their house. Every time I turn around I see them peeing on my flowers. I shoo them away but they always come back. I've spent years working to keep my garden looking beautiful and I'm not about to let these little monsters destroy it. What should I do? — Peggy in Florida

Dear Angry Young Man in Tennessee: For starters, I didn't kill somebody. I didn't kill you to eat "dirt." I told you to eat "dirt" — and die!

Dear Confused with a Mouth Problem: What you find "confusing" about catching your husband in bed with your brother is beyond me.

Dear Raped in South Carolina: You should have thought about that before you selected a human-eating reptile as a biker bar!

Dear Party Animal in Virginia: I agree with you 110 percent. Tuesday nights are great for partying — especially for tireless college chicks like you.

Dear Clever Cuss in Kansas: Give yourself a pat on the back before you head way over — and have your doctor bill him your domestic bill.

Dear Frustrated Joker in Montana: Putting a mouse trap in your wife's underwear drawer is a pretty poor excuse for playing a real joke — putting a mouse in her bed also is out!

Mom hates me because I danced on Daddy's grave!

Dear Dotti: My father died a few weeks ago and I couldn't be happier about it. He physically abused me all my life. He beat my mother, too, but she refused to love him anyway. I arrived late for his funeral because I didn't want to throw up when the preacher said how much God needed his servant. To make matters worse, from Mom's point of view, I laughed out loud and danced a jig at the grave while people were still around. Mom was absolutely furious and hasn't spoken to me since. Was I wrong? — Name withheld in Texas

Dear Name withheld: Not at all. Your father was a monster and you have every right to celebrate his death. Your mother, on the other hand, is a fool who has her head so far up her ass that she can't see daylight. Tell her to get a life and stop feeling sorry for herself. Then tell her to go to hell. — Dot

Will God ever forgive me for cheating on my hubby?

MARGARET in Virginia

Dear Dotti: I've done something terrible to all right and when my husband was out of town on a business trip to D. Harrold and his best friend, James, came to do some work around the house. The next thing I knew, we were both totally naked and in bed having some of the hottest, most satisfying sex I have ever experienced. I swear it was just a one-time thing and I have I'll never cheat on my man again. But what's got me worried is the sheer exhilaration of it. And I can't help but wonder if God can ever forgive me for it. I know you're a devout Christian, Dotti. What do you think? — Name withheld in California

Dear Dotti: My 14-year-old son has an I.Q. of 191 — and everybody tells me he'll be the next Albert Einstein. But all Albert wants to do when he grows up is drive a big ol' garbage truck. I've begged and pleaded with him to go into a field that could benefit from his genius but he refuses. If I push him, what should I do? — Darlene in Texas

THE EVIL GODS WHO WALK AMONG US

AUTHOR Thomas Horn

AUTHOR Dr. Donald C. Jones

Ancient Greek deities like ZEUS and Apollo are actually Satan's agents, says Bible expert!

RELIGION TODAY

Zeus, Apollo, Aphrodite and all the other ancient "gods" were actually fallen angels — and the evil spirits are still walking the Earth today!

What's more, the minions of Satan continue to stir up trouble by inspiring modern-day paganism, New Age religions and a host of other anti-Christian ills, according to researcher Thomas Horn, co-author of the eye-opening new book The Gods Who Walk Among Us.

"Such deities as Zeus, Amun-Ra, Demeter and Isis were simply the classical names attributed to specific fallen spirits. In other words, Apollo was a real personality, Osiris was a genuine Underworld fiend, Hecate actually lived and still does," he contends.

"Much of what is being worshipped in New Age [illegible] are the same spiritual forces that rose up in rebellion against God," Horn said in an exclusive Weekly World News interview. Co-author Dr. Donald E. Jones, a respected Bible scholar, says, "Nothing has changed in Satan's game plan. Just the names of the players — and in some instances even the names are the same."

BLOCKBUSTER book is selling like hotcakes.

According to the experts, the Holy Bible teaches that in prehistoric times supernatural beings that set out from Heaven visited Earth, interacted with mankind and even mated with human females to create a race of superhuman demi-gods or "giants" (Genesis 6:1-4).

Fortunately for mankind, the offspring of the fallen angels were judged wicked by God and wiped out in the Great Flood. But the influence of the unholy visitors helped shape our civilization.

"This could explain how people like the Babylonians of Mesopotamia appeared out of nowhere around 3000 B.C. bringing with them a pantheon of deities, the first written language and a superior knowledge of earth sciences," Horn says.

"It may also explain why many of the religions that followed Sumerian mythology, including Greek mythology, emerged from the original idea that powerful beings with names like Zeus and Apollo visited the Earth, intermarried with women and fathered half-human warriors."

Most people today see the gods of Egyptian and Greek myths merely as fictional characters. But the Bible makes it clear that the false gods were actually evil spirits.

Notes Horn: "The scriptures say, 'Those things which the pagans sacrifice, they sacrifice to devils.' Over and over again, the Bible makes it plain that behind these sacred idols were spirits whose purpose was to draw people away from the one true God."

For example, in the New Testament, St. Paul encounters a Greek oracle — a priestess who allowed herself to be possessed by Apollo in order to give its prophecies. The lady man treats the so-called god just like a demon — and the cure is an in-the-spot exorcism!

The Bible states, "Paul being grieved turned and said to the spirit, 'I command thee in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her.' And he came out the same hour." (Acts 16:16-18)

The most blatantly Satanic of the Greek gods was Dionysus, the lord of intoxication and unbridled human desire. Frenzied female followers of the drunk skin-wearing false god roamed the hillsides, carrying out bizarre rituals accompanied by screaming, music, dancing and lewd behavior.

"Participants were sometimes subjected to orgiastic cruelty as the rule of the cult was 'anything goes,' including lesbianism, bestiality, the consumption of the blood of animals and even human sacrifice," Horn says.

Dionysus or worshipped by their [illegible] worship, the authors say. And a gullible public is largely unaware of their true, sinister nature.

"Retail stores springing up in the [illegible] across the United States supply replica idols of the popular Bacchic demon, and marketing of the occultic paraphernalia used to worship the goddesses Cerynitis, Cardea, Goddess of spells, etc.) has become a multimillion-dollar industry," says Horn.

"Followers of Apollo number in the tens of thousands today."

Satan's loyal henchmen debauchingly inspire this worship and other profane, wicked ideas. And there's more bad news, the authors warn. Increasing reports of abductions of women by so-called "space aliens" may be evidence that Zeus and the rest of Satan's host of fallen angels are up to their old tricks. Mating with human females in order to breed a new race of superhuman anti-God warriors, as we approach the new millennium and the creation of Armageddon.

Even more chilling, the researchers believe that the Anti-Christ, the evil charismatic figure of Satan whom they say is prophesied in the Book of Revelation, will revive an old pagan religion and use it to achieve world domination — declaring himself a Pharaoh-type god-king.

"The Anti-Christ will be the ultimate incarnation of the spirit of paganism," says Horn. "He will be the Devil as the Gods."

The Bible warns us of this, saying the apocalyptic Anti-Christ, also known as the beast, will "cause that as many as would not worship the image of the beast should be killed." (Rev. 13:15)

According to Horn, "The coming world religion will be similar to the Dionysian cult in that those who reject the will of the New Age god-king will be destroyed."

WARNING! Don't worship these false gods

All of the so-called "gods" of ancient Egypt and Greek mythology are actually demons, the researchers contend. And each of Satan's evil spirits is particular kinds of mischief. Here are some of the names of the god-demons and the kind of behavior each inspires among humans:

APHRODITE: Sensuality, fertility rites, vulgar rituals.

AMUN-RA: Materialism, Darwinism.

APOLLO: Humanism, oracles, channeling.

ARTEMIS: Goddess worship, animal rights extremism, lesbianism.

ASCLEPIUS: Holistic medicine, psychic dreaming, spirit-guide counsels.

ATHENA: Goddess worship, feminism, bisexualism.

BAAL: Occultism, pedophilism, abortism.

DEMETER: Earth worship, goddess worship.

DIONYSUS: Excessive wine, Freemasonism, pornography.

EROS: Eroticism, body worship, body piercing, sacred prostitution.

GAEA: Extreme environmentalism, paganism, nature religion.

HECATE: witchcraft, sorcery, occultism, [illegible]

GUYS: Here's how to tell if your buddy is gay!

Guys, your best pal may be a closet homosexual with an intense crush on you — and you may not have the slightest clue! But you can find out if your buddy is secretly gay by looking for a few telltale signs, says a leading expert.

"Most heterosexual men dread making such a discovery," said psychologist Dr. Xavier Quenton of Miami. "But once the truth comes out, both the straight man and his gay friend usually feel better because they are able to discuss their true feelings honestly and openly."

Here from the expert, are eight warning signs that your chum really is a man's man.

• CLAIMS HE'S A MAGNET — Unlike the openly gay male, closet homosexuals generally put forward a "super macho" image, often bragging about acts of conquests — usually women you've never actually seen — bedding loudly and talking endlessly about sports.

• LOOKING FOR WOMEN — Constant put-downs, very often in the form of crude sexual jokes, can reflect a genuine dislike of women and a preference for men.

• FINAL SIGNS — There are certainly a few heterosexual men who remain unmarried after the age of 35, but they are few and far between," says Dr. Quenton. "If a friend insists he's just holding out for 'that special girl,' be very suspicious."

• LOVES CONTACT SPORTS — Gay men are go crazy over broad-shouldered athletes, especially football players, and seeing them tackle each other can get them hot and bothered. If your pal can't stop gushing about a particular player, he probably is nursing a secret crush on the hunk.

• CRITICIZES YOUR DATES — Does your buddy always have something negative to say about your latest girlfriend — and come up with every reason in the book why you shouldn't commit to marriage? Then it's more than likely he's seething with jealousy and wants you all to himself!

• MARRIED WITH CHILDREN — Just because your friend is married doesn't mean he's straight. In fact, if he married reluctantly early or after a very brief courtship, watch out. Notes the expert, "Many young guys are frightened when they discover their orientation and take refuge in marriage, hoping that the woman will 'turn them from homosexuality.'"

PSYCHOLOGIST Dr. Xavier Quenton

• PREFERS "BUDDY" MOVIES — The only person your gay companion has in mind is another guy. So he'd much rather see Mel Gibson and Danny Glover than Tom Hanks and Meg Ryan.

• LACKING GAY — Whether this takes the form of beating up gays or just constant anti-gay jokes, it is "almost always a cover for repressed or closet homosexuality," Dr. Quenton revealed.

You can bet on it! Gambling is actually good for you, say docs

Do you like to gamble? Don't worry. It's good for you, experts say.

Gambling is exciting and it stimulates your body the same way physical exercise does.

It quickens your pulse and makes your blood run faster. It helps to relieve tension and gives you a "high" without drugs.

"Gambling is a healthy form of recreation and an emotional outlet," says Dr. Dan Reuvsen.

Gambling puts you in control. You make your own decisions. You become your own boss and get a psychological boost, Dr. Reuvsen observed, explaining:

"If you bet on horses or on football or baseball games, you're the one who decides which ones to go with. Which ones not to go with and you're the one who decides how much to bet.

"If you have a roulette day or dice job or where you have very little control or none, and there is

Are my sister and husband falling in love?

Serena Sabak

WILL in Salford

Dear Serena: My husband and I have been happily married for six years but I have a feeling he and my sister are falling in love.

My sister spends a lot of time at our house and is always running around in a skimpy bikini and lying out topless in our backyard. We let her because our house has a private backyard where no one can see her, but more than once I've caught my husband staring out the window at her. Then when she comes in the house she's very flirty with my husband. I'm worried that she's trying to break up my marriage. I love my husband dearly so I'm seriously considering forbidding my sister from coming to our house — but I don't want to do that if my suspicions are wrong. Please tell me the truth, are my sister and husband falling in love? — Nell in Salford

Dear Nell: Your husband is attracted to your sister and has told her so — but she doesn't want to do anything to hurt you. However, my crystal ball tells me your marriage is headed for serious trouble in the next few years. Please tell your husband you know about the soap he finds at work. If you don't do something now, you'll be divorced by next summer.

Dear Serena: Please tell me what's wrong with my 9-year-old son. He can barely speak and more often than not, he just sits around the house and stares off into space. I'm afraid that he's possessed. Please help me — Betsy in Toronto

Dear Betsy: Your son has a hearing problem and needs to see a doctor right away. With a little treatment that problem will be back to normal in no time flat. As for us being possessed, don't worry — he's not!

Dear Serena: For the past six years, I've been getting a prank phone call on the second day of every month. The call usually comes at about 7 p.m. I have called ID on my phone but now the creep is calling from different pay phones all over town. I suspect this guy I used to live with is making the calls. But six years is a long time to hold a grudge. Is he doing it? — Angie in Missoula

Dear Angie: He was making the calls for about four years before you got rid of him. Now he's paying someone else to do it. (Isn't approach love about it, yourself? Instead, use the power to speak with him. He might try to bully you, but he would have also a hard time around the courtroom.

Dear Serena: Can you predict the weather? If so, will you tell me what it's going to be like the first weekend of July? If it's not going to rain, I'd like to plan a picnic, since both my sisters are going to be in town. Also, how close is my youngest sister to the woman she moved in with last month? — Party Planner in Winfield

Dear Planner: The weather will be fine all weekend. I'd rather not discuss the details of the relationship between your sister and her friend — but she will make an overwhelming addition to your picnic.

Dear Serena: Can you tell me who stole my wife's umbrella? She left it at work one night and the next day it was gone. It was an umbrella we bought when we were on our honeymoon in England in 1987, so we'd like to get it back. — Will in Salt Lake City

Dear Will: Her boss's wife owned the umbrella — and if your wife wants it back, she better move quickly. Her boss is going to send his wife on a trip to Canada next week — great for the divorce while she's gone. After that, it will be next to impossible to get the umbrella back.

Dear Sick: It was a combination of tuna and turkey.

Weekly World News exclusive: The WORLD'S BIGGEST CROSSWORD!

Good news for dogs & cats with skin problems!

Remarkable Relief for Your Pet's Skin Condition

. . . naturally and without expensive trips to the vet

Nancy Heymann feared that her beloved dog Weezie was scratching herself into an early grave.

The poor canine constantly groomed and scratched at her skin day and night and nothing Nancy did seemed to help.

"I spent hundreds upon hundreds of dollars on Weezie and she was still so miserable," says the frustrated dog owner.

But Nancy had Weezie happily wagging her tail with relief, thanks to a tried-and-true natural health care system developed for dogs and cats by renowned veterinarian Dr Jean Dicks.

"What a blessing," said Nancy.

Over half of all dogs and cats will suffer from some sort of skin problem during their lifetimes, be it from fleas, allergies, poor diet or other causes.

The problem begins dry, only or scaly skin which leads to scratching and biting.

But Dr Dicks' pet skin care system is a fabulous FOUR WAY method to help your dog or cat's itchy skin problems and prevent them from developing.

Your pet will get their permanent pet licking too.

Dr Dicks' natural BATH FORMULA (16 oz) helps to turn off the itch. Then a soothing and lubricating colloidal oil dry skin while eliminating excess oil and dandruff. Totally odor free process.

The SOOTHING MIST FORMULA (4 oz) — made with Aloe Vera and other natural ingredients — helps keep itching under control. Stimulates skin moisture and promotes healing. "It's the only thing that helped," says cat owner Carol Griffith whose pet developed scabby patches along her spine.

The EAR CARE FORMULA (4 oz) brings new soothing relief to the ear canal to dry up ear wax and soothe sore ears.

Dr Dicks even tackles skin problems from the inside with ESSENTIAL GOLD (60 chewable wafers). The delicious treats are formulated with special oils veterinarians recommend for scaly, dry, irritated skin, leaving coats shiny and soft.

Dog owner Sara Hanner is a real-and-true believer in Dr Dicks' system. Her pet Frankie was "a mess" and scratching herself raw. But Frankie's owner found the cure for her pet in Dr Dicks' pet care system.

"Every animal deserves to be healthy & happy"

Dr Dicks — the author of three books on pet care — has put substances into her products because she is a quintessential animal lover herself.

She owns five cats, a yellow dog she rescued a goat that was set to be a dairy doe, a donkey, two geese, three rescued guinea pigs, four horses, three that she saved from neglect, and a lovable old cow.

Her motto is "Every animal deserves to be healthy and happy."

Colleagues praise her distinctive and exclusive products in their practices.

Dr L. Phillips Brown — a nationally prominent veterinarian, educator, author and speaker — called Dr Dicks' pet care products "an important part of an therapeutic regime."

Dr Dicks estimates that over half of the pet problems that wind up costing you hundreds of dollars in vet fees can be prevented. And her health care products help do that.

She does caution that a veterinarian should be consulted if your dog or cat is in severe pain or distress. But thousands have been satisfied with the Dr Jean Pet Care System and it has seen sales of half a million dollars in just a three-month period.

Says Dr Dicks: "You have to take care of your pets, because they can't take care of themselves."

SPECIAL OFFER FOR WEEKLY WORLD NEWS READERS

This is your chance to treat your cat or dog to the best in skin and coat care. Though a single visit to the vet along with prescriptions can cost $100 or more, Dr Jean's Pet Skin Care System is now available to our readers for just $39.95.

AMAZING CHIMP IS WORLD-FAMOUS PHOTOGRAPHER!

CAPETOWN, S. Africa — A chimpanzee named Vaka is making a big splash in the world of wildlife photography — and even took first prize in an international competition against some of the best human photographers in the world!

"This is no fluke. He's aware of what he's doing and knows when he has taken a good photograph," said Vaka's owner Herman Geiger. "He's not just pushing a button on the camera and getting a random shot of whatever happens to be pointing at. He lines up his photos."

By ALEX MORGAN

'He's aware of what he's doing . . . he's not just pushing a button on a camera'

Some photographers examining the photographer's entries that Vaka won with what he's photographing.

But no one is doubting that the 4-year-old chimp takes beautiful and interesting photographs.

His photos are breathtaking. Even the experts and one well-known wildlife photographer who asked to not be identified.

"He has an advantage of being able to easily take his camera places that humans have a hard time getting to.

"But it's like that. He knows which he's been an excellent photographer and a shrewd businessman chimp that's put aside," he said.

Vaka won first prize in a wildlife photography competition in Munich, Germany.

Guys are drooling over nude gals in TV ads!

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — Millions of guys here are skipping their favorite nighttime TV shows and watching nothing but commercials — because 90 percent of the ads feature luscious, naked women!

Commercials for clothes, cars, beer and even appliances show models prancing nude under water, stepping naked from their shower or stepping naked briefly out of tight blue jeans.

"I never watch the shows anymore," said red-blooded bachelor Paulo Soares, 23. "I just flip from channel to channel to watch the commercials."

Oddly enough, nudity is strictly prohibited in all TV programming except commercials.

HONEY CURE:

BE THE picture of health this attractive Miss model keeps fit with garlic, vinegar, nuts and honey.

By JOHN CRANE / World News Now

WASHINGTON — The most powerful medicines known to man are as close as your local supermarket and cost just pennies a day. Garlic, vinegar, nuts and honey really are Mother Nature's miracle cure — and can help you beat everything from arthritis and acne to high blood pressure and heart disease, leading experts say.

And the beauty of it is that garlic, vinegar, nuts and honey are not only safe and amazingly effective, they are a delicious addition to any diet — and can improve your overall health even if you aren't sick.

"You could spend thousands of dollars on prescription drugs and doctor visits and still not get the healing power you'll find in these four foods," declared Dr. Louis Ducarre, the Swiss author of the exciting book, Natural Cures, Natural Life, which is taking Europe by storm.

"By themselves, each of these wonder foods is chock full of the vitamins, minerals and other nutrients that we need to maintain good health.

"But together they are capable of overwhelming just about any health problems that affect human beings. They are powerful medicine indeed."

Some common ailments and prescriptions from Dr. Ducarre's book follow. When a prescription calls for vinegar, any kind will do, although apple cider vinegar, available in any supermarket, is preferred.

DR. LOUIS DUCARRE has studied the health benefits of garlic, vinegar, nuts and honey.

HOW TO BE THE COOLEST PERSON AROUND — IN SIX EASY STEPS!

You can become the coolest person on your block in just a few easy steps!

It's possible to be hip at any age — you just have to be willing to invest a little bit of time in staying in touch with what's current, experts say.

Here, from hip experts, are a couple ways to boost your coolness quotient:

Six Months to the Job of Your Dreams

Imagine waking up in the morning and really looking forward to going to work. Think how much more satisfying your life would be if you enjoyed your career and earned a comfortable living, too!

And there's more. By helping you build your self-confidence, a stimulating job environment could be your key to an eventful social life. Improved communication skills even make you more attractive to the opposite sex!

"Sure," you may be saying. "I'd love to have a more successful career. But I don't have any qualifications for the job I really want."

Luckily, that's where ICS can help. ICS distance education can teach you specialized career skills during your spare time, in the comfort and privacy of your own home. Choose from more than 80 fascinating career fields from computers to nursing. And since many ICS training programs can be completed in as little as six months, you can be ready to start the job of your dreams just half a year from today!

"ICS was the #1 choice for me!"

That's what Linda Tanner, IC said after she completed the ICS Medical Office Assistant Program. She enrolled with ICS because of her interest in becoming a Medical Transcriptionist (before we developed our new Medical Transcription Program, but more on that later).

"A few weeks ago," wrote Linda, "I answered an ad in the newspaper concerning a medical transcription training program. I was told the requirements are college coursework in medical terminology, anatomy and physiology, and two years of secretarial experience. I was also told that the program only accepts two candidates at a time. Having had no prior college coursework, I was hesitant, but took the test and passed it with flying colors. I was chosen, along with another person, to begin the medical transcription training program in the spring. Needless to say, I was thrilled!"

Comprehensive, affordable training that fits your lifestyle!

Like Linda, many people choose ICS because it's easy to fit in with the busiest schedule. Short, "bite-size" lessons allow you the flexibility to get the education you need without interfering with your present job, family life, or social schedule.

But ICS training doesn't just save you time — it saves you money, too! Instructional materials are included in the one low price you pay and sent directly to your home. Low monthly payments help you fit an ICS education into any budget, and the tuition is more affordable than going to a residential college.

Even if you have no experience, ICS training starts with advanced concepts are easy to understand. Plus, if you have questions, experienced instructors are just a toll-free phone call away!

Choose from exciting careers in today's hottest fields!

The Medical Transcriptionist Program mentioned earlier is just one of the exciting new training programs ICS has developed to capitalize on an evolving job market. In fact, you can choose from several programs in the healthcare field, including:

- Medical Office Assistant
- Dental Assistant
- Veterinary Assistant
- Medical Transcriptionist
- Pharmacy Technician

Linda [illegible] and her husband [illegible] and [illegible] — and the results — they're wonderful!

Or, get your degree at home! The ICS Center for Degree Studies is the best place to get a Specialized Associate Degree in as little as 2 years — or less if you have previous college experience. Here are a couple of subjects you can major in:

- Applied Computer Science
- Electrical Engineering Technology
- Business Management
- Accounting

WORLD'S LARGEST DINOSAUR FOOTPRINT FOUND IN UTAH

It's three football fields long & the prehistoric beast would have stood 1,000 feet tall!

By ALEX MORGAN

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah—The largest dinosaur footprint ever discovered has been found — and it's a 330-foot-long hole that sheds new light on how large the prehistoric beasts really were!

NOTED paleontologist Leon Claire

"We always knew dinosaurs were big, but this footprint far exceeds anything we have ever measured," said paleontologist Leon Claire. "From this footprint we can extrapolate that the dinosaur must have been at least 1000 feet tall, possibly much more than that.

"This changes everything we have ever known — or thought we knew — about dinosaurs."

Claire made the astounding discovery while on a routine dig in Arizona's Petrified Forest National Park.

"I was walking along when I noticed a depression in the ground that looked like a huge footprint," he said. "I thought it was a trick of the light, but when I looked closer I realized it was the real deal."

Claire said he was overwhelmed with excitement when he realized what he had found.

"There was a great deal of excitement in the air," he said. "I'm not ashamed to admit that I shed a few tears of joy."

Claire said a team of experts will begin excavating the footprint next week.

"We're not sure how much of the dinosaur's body is preserved in the ground, but we're hopeful that we'll find enough to get a clear picture of what it looked like," he said.

Claire said he hopes the discovery will help scientists learn more about the prehistoric beasts.

"There are still many questions we have about dinosaurs, such as how they lived, what they ate and how they died," he said. "We're hopeful that this discovery will help us answer some of these questions."

Claire said he is also hopeful that the discovery will help boost tourism in the area.

"We're expecting a lot of visitors to come to see this footprint," he said. "We're hopeful that it will help bring some much-needed revenue to the area."

WORLD NEWS MEDICAL REPORT:

BIZARRE DISEASE MAKES MAN PASS DEADLY GAS — AND FORCES HIM TO WEAR AIRTIGHT SUIT!

EXILED
Oscar Flenberger

BONN, Germany — Tragic Oscar Flenberger must live sealed off from the rest of the world in a specially designed airtight suit — because one whiff of deadly gas from his body could kill anyone within three city blocks.

By MIKE FOSTER

Flenberger suffers from a rare ailment known to experts as hyperflatulence. It causes the body to produce a dangerous and highly concentrated gas.

If Mr. Flenberger doesn't wear one of his specially designed airtight suits, said the man's physician Dr. Werner Bender ...

"The gas molecules bind to oxygen receptors in the other person's red blood cells, preventing the cells from getting oxygen needed to keep the cells alive."

Surprisingly, Flenberger's gas-passing is not particularly loud or offensive to smell — in fact, it is almost undetectable, the doctor added. "It is the ultimate case of 'silent but deadly.'"

While former teacher Flenberger says he always suffered from bad gas, it wasn't until 10 years ago that his condition became physically dangerous to others.

"I was reaching a class and shortly after I let loose with a fairly loud one. I noticed that all of the kids were holding their noses. At first I thought I was boring them to death — then I realized that they were actually passing out."

The way you answer this question reveals your personality

By NORMA BURT

Who are you? The way you answer that question reveals a lot about your personality, says psychiatrist Dr. Berthold Schwarz.

"The answer to that question is fundamental to psychology because it goes right to the core of how a person sees himself.

"A person who answers 'I'm me' or 'I'm John Smith' is self-confident and sure of himself. But if you ...

... concerned with power, status and accomplishments."

If a person would even answer the question, it indicates he's unhappy with his self-image, said Dr. Schwarz.

If you find yourself doing that you can take measures to improve it, said Dr. Schwarz.

"First, take stock of yourself, your strengths and your good qualities. Then answer by listing your name and thinking of the positive accomplishments you've been involved in. It won't be long before you'll feel better about yourself."

IS THE ANTI-CHRIST PROPHESIED IN THE BIBLE REALLY A SUPERCOMPUTER?

More and more religious scholars believe theory put forth in blockbuster new book 'The End of the World As We Know It'

By MICHAEL FORSYTH

The Anti-Christ destined to seize worldwide power in the End Times is not a man or a woman, but a giant supercomputer!

That is the astounding theory held by many top Bible scholars, according to a blockbuster new book on the Apocalypse, The End of The World As We Know It, by University of Oregon professor Daniel Wojcik.

These experts are convinced that the Anti-Christ may in fact be a mind-boggling computer housed in the ultramodern building of the headquarters of the Common Market in Brussels, Belgium — which employees have nicknamed "The Beast," Dr. Wojcik writes.

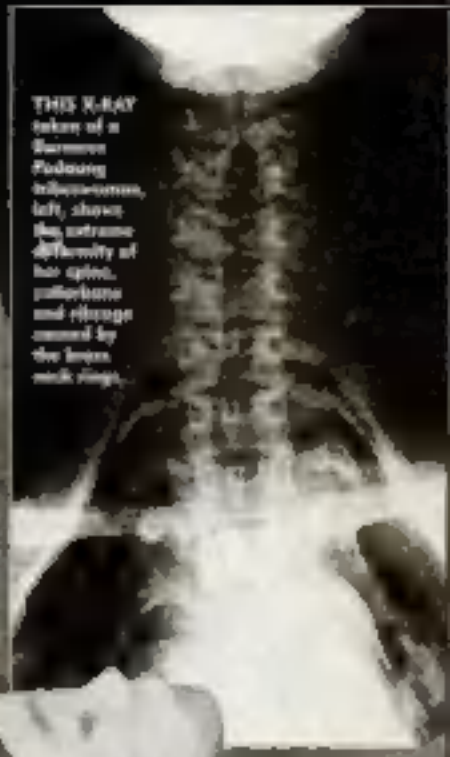
BURMA'S SECRET

'GIRAFFE WOMEN' LIVE — & DIE — IN AGONY!



THIS X-RAY taken of a Burmese Padaung tribeswoman, left, shows the extreme deformity of her spine, collarbone and ribcage caused by the brass neck rings.

REMOVAL of a woman's brass neck rings leads to starvation and death by suffocation.

SHAME:

Brass rings stretch their necks — & they suffocate when the collars are removed!

WHEN A PADAUNG GIRL reaches age 5 several loops of a brass rod are worked around her neck. More loops are added periodically and a cushion is placed between the lower jaw and the rings to keep the brass from digging into her flesh.

By ANN VICTORIA / Weekly World News

YANGON, Burma — For years, outraged human-rights groups worldwide have been protesting one of the most shameful, inhuman abuses ever devised: The horror of the long-necked "giraffe women" of Burma.

Incredibly, even in these enlightened times, Padaung tribeswomen in Burma (also known as Myanmar) are still being forced to wear painful, bone-stretching brass loops around their throats. And if they displease their husbands, they may be punished by the removal of the rings — which causes a slow and agonizing death.

Australian psychologist and feminist author Dr. Allen Tanden has been trying to stop the nightmare for 12 years. But she says the Burmese government is turning a deaf ear to her and to her activist group Liberate Women of Burma.

"Few casual observers realize the constant pain these women endure throughout their lives — or the horrible death they suffer if their husbands decide to punish them," Dr. Tanden says.

"The torture begins when a Padaung girl reaches age 5. Several loops of a brass rod are worked around her neck. More loops are added periodically and a cushion is placed between the lower jaw and the rings to keep the brass from digging into her flesh.

"Gradually the rings begin to stretch the neck, sometimes to a length of 10 inches.

"The rings are considered a sign of elegance and social position by the Padaungs. But the women live in constant agony."

Dr. Tanden showed Weekly World News a hideous X-ray revealing how the collarbone, as well as the ribs and other bones of the chest, are forced down as the head is lifted, distorting the entire body.

"But perhaps the most horrible element of all this is what happens to these married women if they're suspected of adultery — or even of a mild flirtation with another man," Dr. Tanden said. "The rings are cut off — all at once.

"After years of atrophy, the muscles of the neck can no longer hold the head up. The head just flops down and the throat closes. They can't eat or even breathe without extreme effort. After weeks of being unable to do anything but lie on their backs, the throat closes and they slowly suffocate.

"We must stop this practice. It's al-

Remember all that advice you've heard over the years about how it's bad to hold in anger and you should let it out? Turns out that's pure bogwash, a startling new study shows.

By MICHAEL FORSYTH
Weekly World News

University of Iowa researchers have found that people who vent their anger on inanimate objects — by punching pillows, throwing rocks or kicking over garbage cans, for example — become angrier and more hostile, not less.

What's more, the study revealed that pop psychology books that recommend "blowing off steam" actually stir up violent behavior by giving people permission to relax their self-control.

The idea that venting pent-up anger was healthy and good for society was first introduced by pioneering psychoanalyst Dr. Sigmund Freud. The father of modern psychiatry taught that when angry feelings are repressed emotional pressure builds up — and if it's not released, the person suffers psychological stress and is prone to a sudden, violent blow-up.

The "let it out" approach has been advocated for decades by psychologists, self-help gurus and others. But the new study, published in the March issue of the Journal of Personality and Social Psychology, shows it's simply dead wrong.

gravitated toward fellow undergraduates than did angry subjects who weren't allowed to hit a bag.

Also, bag-punching subjects who were first given an article claiming that hitting an inanimate object was an effective means of controlling anger later showed more aggression than those who'd read an article disputing the claim.

Dr. Brad J. Bushman, an associate professor of psychology and lead author of the study explained in an interview that bag-punchers types simply get more and more wound up and never actually feel the kind of emotional release that pop psychologists promise.

"They keep trying to get this emotional release, but it never happens," he said.
